Product Care and Handling Guide

NRC-PRD-021 · effective 1 April 2026 · Northlane Retail Co. - Customer Care Standards Board

Purpose of this guide

This guide gives the care desk the handling and care facts most often asked about, so that answers do not depend on the personal knowledge of whoever picks up the ticket.

Electronics handling

Electronics are shipped with a charge of between 30 and 50 percent. A device that will not power on should be charged for at least 30 minutes on the supplied charger before being declared faulty.

Screens are covered by a factory applied film that is not a screen protector and is intended to be removed.

A device that has been opened, or that has had a non approved charger used with it, is outside warranty.

Apparel and footwear care

Sizing follows Northlane's own size chart, shown on every product page. Sizes are not consistent across brands and a size exchange is the normal remedy for a fit complaint.

Dark denim and dyed cotton may transfer colour on first wash. This is expected and is not a manufacturing defect.

Footwear soles carry a 6 month manufacturing defect cover. Wear to the tread from normal use is not a defect.

Fragile goods

Glass, ceramic and mirrored articles are packed with corner protection and are marked fragile on the outer carton.

Damage to a fragile article must be reported within 48 hours of delivery with photographs of both the article and the outer packaging. The packaging photograph is what allows a claim against the courier.

A fragile article claim without a packaging photograph is still honoured to the customer, but cannot be recovered from the courier.

Kitchen appliances

Appliances must be run once empty before first use. A burning smell on first use of a heating appliance is normal and clears within two cycles.

Non stick coating damaged by metal utensils is not a manufacturing defect.

What to tell a customer about photographs

Photographs are requested for damage, faults and wrong item claims. Ask for one photograph of the article, one of the outer packaging, and one of the label on the parcel.

A claim is never refused solely because the customer cannot supply a photograph. The desk records that the photograph was unavailable and proceeds on the customer's account.
