Delivery SLA and Late Shipment Compensation

NRC-SHIP-002 · effective 1 April 2026 · Northlane Retail Co. - Customer Care Standards Board

Delivery promise

Northlane quotes a delivery promise at checkout. The standard promise is 5 business days from the date the order is placed, for all serviceable pin codes.

Remote and Tier 3 pin codes carry a promise of 8 business days. The promise shown to the customer at checkout is the binding one.

Business days exclude Sundays and gazetted public holidays at the despatching warehouse.

What counts as a late delivery

A delivery is late when the parcel has not been delivered by the end of the promised delivery date shown at checkout.

A delivery is not treated as late where the delay is caused by the customer being unavailable at the address across two attempts, by an incorrect or incomplete address supplied by the customer, or by a documented force majeure event such as a flood, a curfew or a strike.

Late shipment compensation

Compensation is issued automatically without the customer having to ask, once a parcel passes its promised delivery date.

For a delay of 1 to 3 days beyond the promise, compensation is a store credit of 100 rupees.

For a delay of 4 to 7 days beyond the promise, compensation is a store credit of 250 rupees.

For a delay of more than 7 days beyond the promise, compensation is a store credit of 500 rupees, and the customer may cancel the order for a full refund including any shipping charge paid.

Compensation is capped at 500 rupees per order regardless of the number of items or the value of the order.

Parcels that stop moving

Where a parcel records no courier scan for 96 consecutive hours, the care desk raises a trace with the courier without waiting for the customer to make contact.

Where a trace does not locate the parcel within 5 business days, the shipment is declared lost. A lost shipment is resolved by full refund or by reshipment at the customer's choice, and no proof of non receipt is required from the customer.

Failed delivery attempts

Couriers make up to three delivery attempts on consecutive working days.

After a first failed attempt the customer is contacted with a Non Delivery Report reason. After a third failed attempt the parcel is returned to the warehouse and the order is refunded in full.

A first attempt failure caused by the courier rather than the customer, for example a vehicle breakdown, does not count towards the three attempts.

Shipping charges

Orders of 499 rupees and above ship free of charge. Below that value a flat shipping charge of 49 rupees applies.

Shipping charges are refunded in full where the order is cancelled by Northlane, where the shipment is declared lost, or where the delay exceeds 7 days beyond the promise.
